Turkish interior minister resigns

ANKARA, Jan. 2 (Agencie) - Interior Minister Irfan Ozaydinli resigned Tuesday in the wake of riots last week which led to the imposition of martial law in most of Turkey's major cities.

Ozaydinli, 55, a retired air force general and widely 1egarded as a strong supporter of Prime Minister Bulent Ecevit, announced his resignation at a caucus meeting of the ruling Social Democrat Republican People's Party

(RPP). "I have done my best and I would like everybody to believe that. I trust that my successor will be more successful than I have," he said the invitation. Goldwater, a staunch sup-porter of Taiwan, has filed suit in U.S. court seeking to prevent President Jimmy Carter from abrogating the mutual defense treaty with Taiwan. The United States intends to scrap the treaty as a condition of its recognition of Peking, which became official Monday. Details of Teng's meeting with the committee members, led by Chairman Thomas Ashley of Ohio, were learned from the congressmen and from a tape recording made by Republican Representative Richard Kelly of Florida.

in the U.S. over the security of Taiwan following normalization of Sino-American relations, Teng was quoted as tell-ing the group: "The major ef-fort of the People's Republic of China will be to resolve the return of Taiwan through peaceful efforts."

On Goldwater's proposed visit the vice-premier, who is due to visit the United States at the end of his month, said: "I will listen with all modesty to his views and I will not quarrel with him, but welcome his views."

The representatives received a surprise invitation for a meeting from Teng when he atten-ded a reception at the United States Liaison Office Monday to mark the establishment of full diplomatic relations. Several members of the group closely questioned the vice-premier during the meeting Tuesday. Teng was quoted as having told them that every man had

Egypt ready to resume negotiations with Israel

CAIRO, Jan. 2 (Agencies) -Egypt is ready to resume peace treaty negotiations with Israel and is preparing an assessment for relay to the United States, an Egyptian Foreign Ministry official said Tuesday.

The official, who barred use of his name, said Israel's cabinet decision on Sunday was "encouraging and a positive step.

Israel has announced its willingness to resume negotiations on at least two of the three major issues standing in the way of a peace treaty.

The authoritative "Al Ahram" newspaper noted Israel now agrees to negotiate an ange of interpretive letters on the issues of Palestinian autonomy and reviewing Sinai security arrangements. The paper said the decision amounted to a "new position."

But differences remain. Israel has rejected timetables for Palestinian elections 's well as a specific date for reviewing Egyptian troop dispositions in the Sinai Desert. There was no indication in the Israeli cabinet announcement Sunday of a softening of its stand on Article Six of the U.S. draft treaty. Egypt objects to having the treaty normalizing relations take precedence over its commitments to defend other Arab states in time of war.

tanker moves out to sea

LA CORUNA, Spain Jan. 2 (UPI) - The crippled and leaking oil supertanker "Andros Patria" moved away from the Spanish coast Tuesday but detergent-spraying rugs prepared to combat the estimated 15.3 million gallon slick of Iranian crude it left behind.

Calling the slick "big" a navy lieutenant who flew over the area said it lay 10 miles off this port city on Spain's north-

But the prevailing winds were blowing the crude north towards France and England and away from the local fishing banks and bathing beaches, martine

The Spanish Navy said the tug "Wijsmuller" had taken the 218,000-ton ship in tow and that it was moving out to sea. Other reports said the tanker was actually sailing under its

The last established-position of the tanker was 50 miles off the northwestern up of Spain. The navy first said the tanker was going "lowards Lisbon" but later corrected itself to say simply that it was going "10wards the southwest."

A navy communique said "craft based in La Coruna and equipped with means to control and counter the oil slicks are already in action." Military aircraft kept track of the location of the slick.

The national news agency EFE estimated the spill at some 950,000 tons, but none of the official navy or government communiques gave a figure.

The Greek-registered "Andros Patria," carrying 208,000 tons of crude to Rotterdam, ran into trouble Sunday night in gale force winds and beavy seas of the Spanish coast.

When a 15-meter crack developed in the side of the hull, the ship began to spill oil and explosions and a fire hit the tanker. The captain and 28 others including his wife and son abandoned ship and were lost.

Three men stayed on board to try to save the ship and they were picked up Monday by helicopters and saved.

Of those who abandoned ship and were lost, nine bodies have been recovered. Officials said the bodies were burned. They said that contrary to first reports that the lifeboats capsized, the boats must have carried the people into burning oil on the surface of the sea.

The survivors said 32 people were originally aboard the tanker, and not 37 as the Spanish Navy reported.

Mabin said Venus is currently at its brightest and can be seen for about 12 hours a day. "From a moving aircraft or from a car, it could appear to be moving at the same speed because of the great distance," he said.

Leading British astronomer Sir Bernard Lovell told London newspapers the sightings were probably meteorites that failed to burn up on entering atmosphere, that it was "depressing and deplorable" that bright objects in the heavens could be imagined as visitors from outer space, and that such suggestions were science fiction.

The Australian television films were shown in the United States Monday on the CBS Evening News, and afterward UFO expert Allen Hynek of Northwestern University said this is certainly one of the best if not the best, purported UFO films I've seen ... MADRID, Jan. 2 (Agencies) - Presumed Basque separatists gunned down an army major Tuesday and a bomb blew apart a police explosives expert as terrorism in northern Spain Terrorists in the city of San Sebastian were waiting for Maj. Jose Maria Herrera outside his home Tuesday morning and hit him with submachinegun fire when he started to leave for his office.

Herrera was an adjutant to the military governor of Guipuzcoa province.

The Spanish defense minister recently said the Basque separatist group ETA was trying to provoke the army into intervening in the terrorist struggle in northern Spain and thereby halting national democratiza.

In the last three months of 1978, ETA killed 39 people, many of them policemen.

In Pampiona, a blast killed Francisco Berlanga Robles, He and another bomb squad member were trying to defuse a device that had been planted near Witnesses said he was badly mutilated. Not one stitch of grey uniform was left visible on what remained of the body.

The killers in San Sebastian stole a car early in the morning to carry out their operation. Reports put the number of gunmen involved at two or three and they escaped in the stolen car.

Also Tuesday, ETA claimed responsibility for killing two people last weekend in separate attacks in the Basque country.

Soviets rewrite history on Nixon MOSCOW, Jan. 2 (R)

A Soviet foreign affairs weekly has described former President Richard Nixon as "an unprincipled politician" who supported detente only to win a second term in the White House.

The weekly, "Za Rubezhorn" ((Road), delivered its verdict Monday in an introduction to extracts from Nixon's memoirs on the Watergate scandal which toppled him — but which was virtually ignored at the time by the Soviet press.

In an article after the extracts, the weekly said they revealed Nixon "despite all his efforts to whitewash himself

'REMAINING HURDLES'

'the "important" political statement promised by the Egyptian government today will only be important if it announces the end of negotiations with Israel and rejection of all Israeli conditions for restamption of the talks. The Cairo media describes every official statement as "important" but only a few have a justifiable claim to importance, and the ending of direct negotiations with Israel will have one. Israel had made it absolutely clear that it will not change its position on withdrawal from the occupied territories and the text and interpretation of Article Six in the proposed peace treaty which gives the treaty priority over Egypt's Arab commitments. This being the case there does not seem to be any good reason to resume the talks.

But for unknown reasons, Egypt has not given up hope. A senior Egyptian negotiator said in a newspaper interview this week that the talks had not hit the end of the road yet and that more contacts were necessary to overcome the remaining hurdles. The "remaining hurdles" have been the only hurdles of substance all along and unless - and if - they are eliminated there is no use talking about the settled 90 per cent of the issues because their settlement has never been the subject of much doubt anyway.

Only the termination of the negotiations process will allow the opening of a new leaf in relations between Egypt and the opposing Arah countries. The dispute since the Baghdad summit conference has not been personal but rather over substance. The other Arab states have warned from the start that the Camp David formula and the resulting negotiations in Washington will not achieve the hasic minimum of Arab demands. Egypt has insisted that negotiations can lead to a successful conclusion. Events of the past few weeks have underlined that a government headed by Menahem Begin will not help the achievement of a just, lasting and bonorable peace in the Middle East. But while the suspicions of the other Arab states have now been confirmed beyond a shred of doubt. Egypt's insistence on upholding the peace initiative has remained unchanged.

If Egypt now agrees to accept what the other Arabs have seen from the start, a hasis for the restoration of Arab unity of action will have been established. This would open the way for another Arah summit conference to agree on the "minimum" Arah demands that all the other Arabs can support. Even in the absence of Egypt, the Baghdad summit has been able to avoid extremist positions and should Egypt return to the fold, the possibility of working out a position and strategy that would not alienate the Washington administration should be very good. Even the Palestine Liberation Organization has been showing moderation in recent weeks and the National Council meeting in Damascus in less than a fortnight will confirm this trend. The Palestinians are seriously talking about creating a government-in-exile to help the Washington administration in overcoming the complex of dealing with the PLO. Jordan is also expected to play a more positive role in representing the Palestinians and helping the PLO in exercising this representation.

Isfahan has been a center of violent demonstrations against the reign of the Shah.

Bell technical inspector John Shea of Coloradn Springs, Colorado, said he had two rocks thrown at his back after one Isfahan demonstration, and that youths on motorcycles played at pretending to run him down.

Members of the Bell group displayed crudely printed leaflets, heginning "cursed Yonky" and condemning "U.S. imperialism." that had been thrust into their cars by demonstrators.

In a display of grim humor, Bell empolyees ordered T-shirts emblazoned "stay and die with BH1" (Bell Helicopters International) and "keep a low profile." Both were decorated with imitation bullet holes. — (AP)

Chinese low-profile in U.S.

By George Gedda WASHINGTON -

"What section of the liaison office do you work in?" an American asked a Chinese diplomal at an embassy reception. "I am an official," the diplomat replied.

After an embarrassed silence, the American excused himself and drifted away in search of someone more informative to converse with.

Moments later, the six Ohinese at the reception all left togother, with the highest-ranking diplomal out the door fitst, followed hy the rest, all in order of their rank.

"They always do that, both when they come in and when they leave," remarked a Western diplomat. They never deviate from the pecking order. For a supposed classless society, they do some strange things." Discipline, control, regimentation. These are the words frequently used by those most familiar with Chinese diplomacy since Peking opened its mission here five years ago. There has not been an easy exchange of information between the Chinese envoys and U.S. officials. Some American diplomats, for example, hesitate to ask a newly arrived Chinese about his family life for fear he may take offense. Most also refrain from asking. a Chinese about his assignment here. For that answer, the Americans must rely on accumulated impressions. If a Chinese second secretary, for example, shows up for three consecutive meetings on Sino-

American trade matters. Americans then conclude that his specialty is trade.

Now that the barrier to normal relations bas been overcome, diplomats here are wondering whether the Chinese will loosen up. "We should have the answer to that by next summer," said one observer.

The Chinese language is given as one reason for the introverted behavior of the officials Peking bas sent here. One specialist in the language said it is almost impossible to communicate in Chinese without conveying an opinion because there are so few neutral words.

Chinese history also plays a role. Such Western concepts as free speech and democracy are considered luxuries by the Chinese. A nation that suffered widespread hunger as well as invasion and exploitation by foreigners attaches importance to stability, security and enough food for the masses. Personal freedom is thus subservient to the achievement of these common goals.

Americans tend to underestimale how nationalism has shaped the Chinese character. The way Chinese see themselves perhaps best expressed by the word "China," which translates to "center country." in other words, all other countries are at the periphery.

With Chinese sensibilities easily ruffled, the Americans who deal with them must take unusual precautions. There have been embarrassments.

A few years ago, the U.S. Passport Office sent a memo to Security precautions at the mission are unusually rigid. Rather than rely on American labor, the mission bas workers flown in from China for most repair jobs.

Chinese diplomats virtually never are seen alone around town. So recreation, group outings at area amusement parks are favored.

One China-watcher said it was his impression that the Chinese are almost as guarded with each other as they are with Americane.

"With all the flip-flops over the years, the Cultural Revolution and the counter-Cultural Revolution and other shifts, the Chinese keep their thoughts to themselves," he said — (AP)

A president who was committed to balancing the federal budget and a Congress elected in the year of a taxpayers' revolt would have to reconcile their fiscal conservatism with new programs that would extremely costly, cven by the Pentagon's standards.

And in the last weeks of 1978, Carter was severely criticized by liberal Democrats, many of whom long had been suspicious that be lacked sympathy with the party's traditional support of domestic welfare programs.

At issue was Carter's reported decision to allow the Pentagon's budget for fiscal 1980 to grow by three percent, after taking into account the cost of inflation. Major domestic programs, on the other hand, reportedly were to be severely constrained to keep the total federal budget deficit under $30 points in the skirmishing over the size of the budget by pledging bis administration to three percent defense growth rate. He also bad presented the budget as a strong boost for the U.S. forces committed to NATO.

While hard line critics charged that both claims were debatable, the administration stood by its position. .. Desperate to show their eagerness to hold down federal spending without jeopardizing important porkbarrel projects, most members found it comfortable to take Carter's claims at face value.

Carter's position also was buttressed by the fact that many of the weapons with which the hard-liners were most concerned could not have absorbed significant funding increases in any case during fiscal

An effort by some members of the Senate Armed Services Committee to increase funds for development of a new intercontinental missile called M.X collapsed in May because the Air Force had not yet decided how the new missile would be prorected against the large arsenal of increasingly accurate Soviet missiles. Several important Army programs - a new tank, two new anti-aircraft missiles, a new armored troop carrier, two new helicopters - all bad been delayed at various points in their development cycle during the 1970s. As a result, these weapons bad not yet entered production or were just beginning

Long drawn out disputes between the Navy and three of its largest shipbuilders over some $2 billion worth of contract claims left a general impression -even among some members who could be counted on to support a much larger shipbuilding program — that the Navy just couldn't absorb more mony until it straightened out its management of ship construction programs. The upshot was that both houses rejected by large margins proposals that would bave increased or decreased the defense spending ceiling from the amounts recommended by congressional committees.

By the time each house acted on the defense appropriations bill the anti-tax mood in the country, symbolized by California's "Proposition 13," was in full flight. But the few attempts to cut the bill did not present any serious threat.

the promised alternatives would eventually cost about as much as the weapons they were to replace. of greater effectiveness against

At the insistence of the House Democratic leadership, he stressed that his purpose was not to cut the money from the budget, but rather to spend it on "higher priority" defense projects that would more directly beef up NATO's capability to defend Western Europe. And he unequivocally committed himself to requesting a slightly less expensive, nonnuclear carrier in 1979.

Despite sophisticated arguments that tried to justify their role in future U.S. strategy, the bomber and the carrier were subjected to heavy criticism as symbols of military obsoles-

With the end of the Vietnam War, 4be B-1 had become the surrogate target for critics of Pentagon spending. Capitalizing on the plane's price tag of $100 million-a-copy and its failure to meet' some of the more extravagant design goals for it, critics ridiculed the plane as a plaything for generals. An energetic anti-B-1 lobby bombarded the press and members of Congress with arguments against production of the plane. But the same themes attracted liberals who were critical of the Pentagon's share of the federal budget and of its presumed influence on U.S. foreign policy: the ship was extremely expensive — $2 billion. without its deckload of planes - and opponents painted images of beribboned admirals swaggering around the quarter deck to no real purpose. Other expensive weapons had faced such attacks in the previous decade, but what sealed the doom of the B-1 and the carrier was the skepticism of many members who were not usually inclined to cut Pentagon programs. House Appropriations Committee chairman George Mahon, D-Texas, apparently spoke for many members when he said, in opposition to both the bomber and the carrier that the weapon of the future clearly was the intercontinental missile. Neither the bomber nor the carrier would play more than a marginal role in any conflict with the Soviet Union, accord-

Alabama, Trojans in title contention

NEW YORK, Jan. 2 (AP) — Second-ranked Alabama beat top-ranked Penn State in the Sugar Bowl in New Orleans Monday to put in a strong claim for college football's national championship, but third-ranked Southern California made a bid as well with a victory in the Rose Bowl.

Alabama topped hitherto unbeaten Penn State, 14-7, on an eight-yard touchdown run by Major Ogilvie with 21 seconds left in the third quarter. Then with seven minutes left in the game and Penn State just one yard away from a touchdown, the underrated Crimson Tide defense twice stopped running backs from scoring.

The Trojans paced by quarterhack Paul McDonald and all-American halfback Charles White, maintained the West's Rose Bowl mastery Monday with a 17-10 victory over Michigan in a game punctuated by an earthquake.

A temblor, a relatively minor quake with an epicenter in the Pacific Ocean about 40 kilometers west of the Bowl, took place just before halftime but did not interrupt play or bother the 105,629 spectators.

McDonald passed 9 yards to Hovy Brenner for one touchdown and White ran 3 yards for the other on a controversial play as the Pac-10 heat the Big Ten a fifth straight year. Frank Jordan added a 35-yard field goal for Southern Cal. The results gave Alabama and Southern Cal the best shot

Financial Times' strikes out for European, U.S. markets

LONDON, Jan. 2, (R) — Britain's financial and husiness daily newspaper, the "Financial Times," Tuesday launched a major bid to capture markets in Europe and the United

"The pink newspaper," as it is called from the color of its paper, was printed for the first time Monday night in the West German city of Frankfuri as wetl as in London.

The newspaper said this will enshie it to reach readers much earlier in business centers in West Germany, Austria, Belgium, Italy, Holland, Switzerland and Turkey, and lo be on sale on New York in the morning. It will reach the West Coast before close of husiness on the day of publication.

Over the coming months, distribution of the Frankfurtproduced newspaper will be extended to other markets, including France, Finland, Greece, Portugal, Canada and

The newspaper's expansion, planned 18 months ago, coincides with the non-appearance of Britain's most famous newspaper, the "Times," which has been suspended since Nov. 30 because of a dispute over new technology.

The "Financial Times," circulation is about 180,000. With high advertising rates, it is one of the few success stories in modern British journalism. In recent years it has broadened its coverage to take in wide reporting of politics, foreign news and the arts.

Most of the Frankfurt paper will consist of full page facsi-mile transmissions from London, but there will also be a special section for the "Finan-cial Times' overseas readers, the newspaper said.

Monday night's print run in Frankfurt was 20,000, but this will be raised to 30,000 over the next three months.

The "Financial Times," in an article expiaining the thinking behind its new project, said it hoped to attract new forms of trade gap triples

S. Korean

SEOUL. Jan. 2 (AP)-South Korea's customs clearance trade deficit more than tripled in 1978 to $2.5 hillion from the previous year's $770 million, according to preliminary official statistics.

Korean exports last year were listed as $12.5 billion op 25 per cent from the previous vear, while imports numped 38 per cent to $15

The wider trade gap was mainly because of increased imports of capital goods for rapid industrialization and raw materials for growing export processing, in addition to the government's further imports liberalization.

The government Economic Planning Board has estimated that the nation's current accnun deficit should be helow $1 billion in 1978. hecause of surpluses in the invisible sector, particularly in overseas construction services.

U.K. may lose millions in Iran,magazine says The main threat 10 payments

LONDON, Jan. 2 (R) - A London economic journal Tuesday forecast British businesses could lose millions in payments for goods exported to Iran as a result of the disorders there.

"Export Direction," which claims a readership of more than 100,000 businessmen, said in a despatch from Tehran, only a small proportion of the 568 million sterling ($1,150 million) worth of British goods exported to Iran in the first nine months of 1978 had been paid for for goods already shipped was the widespread burning of bank records by demonstrators, which would cause long delays at the very least, "Export Direction" Military suppliers would not suffer as the Shah would not risk cutting off his arms supplies by defaulting on their payments, it added.

"It will be the hundreds of small fry, with one or two bigger fish, supplying the Iranian market with goods services, who will suffer the consequences of the chaos, both now and in the future." journal said.

Troubles force Du Pont to shut plant in Iran WILMINGTON, Jan.

(UPI) - The Du Pont company will close its textile plant in Iran because of threats of possible violence against Americans and a fuel shortage, the company said Tuesday.

Spokesman James Adshead said the 45 American employees of the plant, located near Tehran, will be flown back to the United States and reassigned jobs at other Du Pont plants.

The decrease in Iranian oil production end political demonstrations in the country led to the decision to shut the plant down, Adsbead said.

Your Individual Horoscope

FOR WEDNESDAY, JANUARY 2, 1979 What kind of day will tomorrow be? To find out what the stars say, read the forecast given for your birth

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Co-workers may be touchy or uncooperative today, but that's no reason not to enjoy a quiet dinner at home with a loved one tonight.

TAURUS You'll have to move gingerly in the social milieu right now. A party offers romantic prospects, but it's a mixed bag with other contacts.

(May 21 to June 20) Despite the doubts of loved ones, career gains still can be made. The evening brings an cotertaining outing and possibly romance.

(June 21 to July 22) It may be best to put that worrisome problem aside for now. Instead, relax and go out with a loved one for an evening on the town.

LEO
(July 23 to Aug. 22) 12 (3)
You'll only add to your financial worries by taking a long-shot gamble now. Still, a good time can be had by all, at little cost, at home.

VIRGO (Aug. 23 to Sept. 22) Partners may seem erratic, but the night ends on an affectionate note. Don't worry about the future of your love instead, take it day-by-day.

I.IBRA
I Sept. 23 to Oct. 22; 23 A
If you apply yourself to work, instead of worrying about it, you will be at peace with yourself by the day's end. Guard bealth. SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21)

An "iffy" day re affection and entertainment plans — but if you'll forgo expensive places and stick close to home, the day ends harmoniously. SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21)

You may be uncertain as to which alternative to pursue re a domestic issue. Still, there's no place quite like home this cheerful p.m. CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 19) W Don't give way to depression or introversion, for friends will appreciate your viewpoint and a social gathering could lead to love.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20 to Feb. 18) "Neither a borrower nor lender be" may be the message now. Despite aggravation, financial and career interests will prosper by day's end. PISCES (Feb. 19 to Mar. 20) If you feel a loved one is insensitive, a talk with an adviser provides reassurance. Don't let burt feelings lead to career oversights.

Doctors keep Hess out of jail

BERLIN, Jan 2 (Agencies) - Convicted Nazi war criminal Rudolf Hess will remain under care at the British Military Hospital in West Berlin "for the time being" instead of returning to Spandau Prison, a spokesman said Tuesday.

The 84-year-old former deputy fuehrer was taken to the hospital last Friday suffering from a circulatory ailment and blurred vision.

In announcing his hospitalization, the spokesman said Hess was to be returned to Spandau Prison - where he is the only inmate-after undergoing three days of tests.
